BRITISH BID HIGH TO KEEP PRIZED ART

English Dealers Force Up the Prices and Get Cherished Objects at Leverhulme Sale.

MORGAN ONE OF BUYERS

Day's Top Price, $12,500, Paid for Golden Walnut Suite—Two Days' Total $294,785.

Despite the heavy snowstorm several hundred persons turned out yesterday for the second day's sale of the furniture section of the late Viscount Leverhulme's art collection at the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. They paid $294,785 for 124 lots of furniture, tapestry and diversified objects of art. Added to the $159,340 (corrected figures) paid for 130 articles at Tuesday's sale, the total for the two days is $294,785.

Although yesterday's total was less than the first day's, connoisseurs said that the prices were just as good, if not better, than on the day before, considering the relative importance of the articles sold. Both American and English experts agreed that the prices have been much higher than if the Leverhulme collection had been auctioned in England, as the executors of the estate originally planned. In some cases competitive bidding between English and American buyers has carried the price to two or three times the figures that could have been expected in England, and considerably more than the experts of the Anderson Galleries had estimated.

English Get Prized Pieces.

The feature of yesterday's sale was the success of English dealers in taking some of the most desirable articles away from their American rivals. Charles of London bid in thirteen, and London eleven of the most prized and expensive pieces. Sir Joseph Duveen of London was an active bidder, although he made his purchases through agents.

Many of the articles bought by the English dealers, especially the old English furniture, will be shipped back to England to grace the collections of English art lovers. It is understood that Duveen, Charles and Partridge received commissions from English collectors to outbid the Americans on certain particularly prized articles which Englishmen could not bear to see leave their shores. Partridge represents the British royal family as well as other British collectors.

Some of the pieces bought by the English dealers, however, will remain in this country. Partridge has American as well as English clients, and it is understood that he was acting for J. P. Morgan in at least one, and probably more, of his purchases.

$12,500 Day's Top Price.

Partridge paid the highest price of the day—$12,500—for a seven-piece English golden walnut suite (settee, four chairs and two stools), which dates back to 1720, in the reign of William and Mary and comes from Benjamin Mackintosh's collection. The settee and chairs are upholstered in velvet, and the settee and chairs have square backs. This lot went to the auctioneer after a spirited competition with Symonds, the most active of the New York dealers at the Anderson while the bidding rose from $3,000 to $12,000, but finally gave up.

The second highest price was $7,000, which W. D. Bowers, a New York collector, paid for two eighteenth century English satinwood cabinet modes, beautifully painted with panels in the style of Angelica Kauffman and each, Bowers offered $1,800. Another New York collector, who dropped out at $3,700. This was an even more exciting battle than the fight between the dealers for the walnut suite.

Many prominent art collectors were the audience yesterday, as on the previous day, since for part in the bidding at times, but most of them let professional dealers bid for them on commission. In addition to those who attended Tuesday's session others observed yesterday were Mrs. Owen D. Young, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. James Cox Brady, Mrs. George F. Baker Jr., Miss Belle de Costa Greene, Mrs. de Acosta Lydig, Alfred B. MacLean, George Mercer, Philip Rosenbach, Irwin Untermyer, Mrs. Frederick Haskell, Mrs. John J. Borland, H. M. McIntosh and P. G. Tallman.

PRICES AGAIN HIGH

Alone Likely to Bring $100,000—Buyer So Excited Bids Against Himself.

Buyers and collectors paid $151,700 for articles of old English furniture—tapestries and varied art yesterday at the fifth day's sale of the Leverhulme art collection in the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. This brought the total up to $541,810 for the first part of the late Viscount Leverhulme's furniture.

There will be four more days of the furniture sale later in the month, and these are expected to bring the total close to $1,250,000 for the furniture alone, besides which the collection includes paintings, porcelains, books, original drawings, prints and watercolors.

Mrs. Baker Pays Top Price.

Mrs. George F. Baker Jr., wife of the banker, paid the highest price of yesterday's sale for an individual object. This was $11,500 for an English eighteenth century satinwood library bookcase, nearly 10 feet tall and nearly eight feet wide. Viscount Leverhulme bought it from the collection of Captain E. H. Wilson at Rohampton, London. It is regarded as one of the greatest prizes of the collection and is illustrated in the book, "English Furniture of the Eighteenth Century," by Herbert Cecil, an authority on that subject, who catalogued the articles in the Leverhulme furniture collection. Mrs. Baker had to make a determined fight for the bookcase against Mr. Cecil, who bid it up to $11,000 before he quit. The bookcase is inlaid with various woods, and the doors have a flat lattice in the manner of Sheraton.

CITY'S ART PRESTIGE ENHANCED BY SALE

Record Prices at Leverhulme
Auction Strengthen New York's
Bid to Be World Centre.

ANOTHER SPIRITED DAY

Sales of $93,780 Put Three Days'
Total at $388,565—Two Table-
Covers Bring $10,000.

With American and British dealers again bidding against each other for choice pieces of old English furniture, the third day's sale of the furniture selection of the Leverhulme art collection at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon brought $93,780 for 122 articles of furniture and miscellaneous art objects. The total received in the first three days was $358,565.

The auctioned articles again brought remarkably high prices. It was estimated by American art experts, on the basis of the sales already made, that the Leverhulme collection as a whole would bring twice what it would have brought if the sale had been held in London.

Art dealers said that the Leverhulme sale would go far toward strengthening the bid New York has made since the end of the war to replace London as the art centre as well as the financial center of the world. The great prosperity of the United States, and the comparative poverty of England since the war, it was remarked, was the big factor in the change.

Antiques as Salable as Bonds. Moreover, furniture dealers said, the high prices which New Yorkers had been willing to pay for pieces from the Leverhulme collection indicated a growing tendency on the part of wealthy Americans, as well as dealers, to regard furniture of authenticated antiquity as a good investment. The Leverhulme sale showed, furniture experts said, that antique furniture of high quality could be liquidated as successfully as bonds, rare books or diamonds.

Frank Partridge, Inc., New York and London dealers, won the biggest prize of yesterday's sale in two Adam satinwood bookcases (eighteenth century English), after a spirited fight with Henry Symons, New York dealer. The pieces brought $8,000 each, twice as much as had been expected by the English experts who appraised the estate.

The bookcases came from the collection of the seventh Earl of Chesterfield and were heirlooms in the Chesterfield family. One also was formerly in the collection of the Earl of Carnarvon. The dimensions are large—8 feet, 5 inches tall; 6 feet, 8 inches wide, and 21 inches deep.

"Now we'll have to build a new house to keep them in," said a woman for whom the dealer apparently had been acting.

$10,000 for Two Table Covers.

The second highest price was $5,000 paid by P. W. French & Co., New York dealers, for each of two fine seventeenth century table covers from the collection of Viscount Wimborne at Dorsetshire, England. Partridge put up a still fight for these pieces, but stopped bidding at $4,750. Each article is 12 feet 3 inches by 8 feet, and is woven in bright colors representing flowers and leaves.

One of the most beautiful objects in the sale—an eighteenth century mahogany and satinwood Pergolesi secretaire-bookcase with figures on the centre door in lattice tracery after designs by Sir Joshua Reynolds, was sold for $4,100 to Karl Freund and a spirited competition with Frederick Haskell.

P. W. French & Co. took from Symons, Inc., after very lively bidding, an eighteenth century commode of rare woods—kingwood, tulipwood, violetwood, etc.—from Sir Anthony de Rothschild's collection, and believed to have been made by Chippendale. It brought $4,000 and is understood to have been bought for an English collector.

Other pieces that almost certainly will go back to England are two eighteenth century English satinwood cabinets, which Partridge bought for $2,100 and $2,550, respectively, after the hardest fight of the afternoon, in which Symons was the loser.

Laughter Amid Exciting Bids.

The sale of these two pieces aroused much excitement and amusement. The first was bid up steadily from $300 to $2,100, with Partridge bidding at every hundred-dollar mark on the way up and Symons at every fifty-dollar mark. The auctioneer's intonations as he sang out "and fifty" for Symons after every bid except the last—by his opponent—finally set the audience to laughing. When the second cabinet was sold Symons tried his luck on the hundred-dollar bids, and it was for Partridge that the auctioneer sang out the "and fifties." The English dealer finally won with his last "and fifty." P. W. French & Co. bought an early Georgian decorated cream lacquer cabinet in the style of William Kent, which Mrs. Fritz Kreisler, wife of the violinist, wanted so badly that she bid fiercely against the dealer until he had to pay $2,700 to get it.

A George II petit-point oblong table-screen, about 1730, in a mahogany frame—the whole thing only 8½ by 13½ inches—went to J. A. Martin for $1,050 after it had been bid up from $300.

The only article characterized by the auctioneer as a bargain was a seventeenth century Brussels tapestry by Jan Raes, which Mrs. Victor Weil bought for $1,100. "This is almost giving it to you," said the auctioneer.

ART PRICES SOARING IN LEVERHULME SALE

Some Pieces Sell for Double and Triple the Estimate of English Appraisers.

AMERICANS GET THE MOST

Prized Pieces in Furniture Section to Stay Here—Sales of $101,735
Raise Total to $490,200.

Although English art dealers continued to bid high, American dealers and collectors carried off most of the prizes yesterday at the fourth day's sale in the Anderson Galleries, Park Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, of the furniture section of the Leverhulme art collection. It was indicated that most of the items in the collection would remain on this side of the Atlantic, and that the most desirable pieces would be found ultimately in the collections of wealthy Americans.

Frank Partridge, Inc., New York and London dealers, are buying chiefly for American clients, rather than for English customers, as it is at first supposed. Most of the articles will remain in New York, but some will be distributed throughout the country, as buyers are here from all over the United States.

Total Near Half Million.

One hundred and sixteen lots of furniture, tapestry, needlework and miscellaneous art objects were sold yesterday for $101,735, making a total of $490,200 since the sale began on Tuesday. Dealers and private collectors continued to bid against each other with what would have been regarded as reckless extravagance several years ago. They paid much more—in some cases two or three times as much—as the English appraisers of the Leverhulme estate had estimated the articles would bring at auction in England.

Virtually the only exceptions were some of the Stuart needlework pieces, which are said to be more popular with English than with American collectors. There did not seem to be so much competition for these as for the furniture and tapestries.

Four eighteenth century Aubusson tapestry panels, each about 8 by 12 feet, sold for a total of $13,800 after spirited bidding by American dealers. They were all from the collection of Sir Anthony Rothschild, Buckinghamshire, England, who had one of the finest tapestry collections in the world, and from whose estate they were purchased by the late Viscount Leverhulme. Symons, Inc., dealers, bought three and P. W. French & Co., dealers, bought one. The prices varied from $3,100 to $3,700.

After a hard fight with Frank Partridge, Inc., Symons bought a suite of two Lion mahogany settees and two Lion mahogany armchairs (about 1730) for $5,900. One settee brought $3,900, the other $2,700, and each chair $1,700. The cabriole legs are carved with lion masks and paws.

$3,300 for a Tapestry.

Captain Biddlecombe is about 35 years old. He spent his early years as far ahead of England in racing cars and machines for military purposes. He did not know what was ing to come out from the big plants
Detroit, but so far, he said, England excelled America in commercial ing.
"At present," Captain Biddlecombe

CONDITIONS OF SALE

ALL BIDS TO BE PER LOT AS NUMBERED IN THE CATALOGUE.

The highest bidder to be the buyer. In all cases of disputed bids the decision of the Auctioneer shall be final.

Buyers to give their names and addresses and to make such cash payments on account as may be required, in default of which the lots purchased shall be resold immediately.

Purchases to be removed at the buyer's expense and risk within twenty-four hours from the conclusion of the sale, and the remainder of the purchase money to be paid on or before delivery, in default of which The Anderson Galleries, Incorporated, will not be responsible for any loss or damage whatever, but the lot or lots will be left at the sole risk of the purchaser, and subject to storage charges.

All lots will be placed on public exhibition before the date of sale, for examination by intending purchasers, and The Anderson Galleries, Incorporated, will not be responsible for the correctness of the description, authenticity, genuineness, or for any defect or fault in or concerning any lot, and make no warranty whatever, but will sell each lot exactly as it is, WITHOUT RECOURSE.

If accounts are not paid and purchases removed within twenty-four hours of the conclusion of the sale, or, in the case of absent buyers, when bills are rendered, any sum deposited as part payment shall be forfeited, and The Anderson Galleries, Incorporated, reserve the right to resell the lot or lots by either private or public sale, without further notice, and if any deficiency arises from such resale it shall be made good by the defaulter, together with all expenses incurred. This condition shall be without prejudice to the right of this Company to enforce the sale contract and collect the amount due without such resale, at its own option.

The Anderson Galleries, Incorporated, will afford every facility for the employment of carriers and packers by the purchasers, but will not be responsible for any damage arising from the acts of such carriers and packers.

The Anderson Galleries make no charge for executing orders for their customers and use all bids competitively, buying at the lowest price permitted by other bids.

CATALOGUES ON REQUEST

SALES CONDUCTED BY MR. F. A. CHAPMAN, MR. A. N. BADE AND MR. E. HAROLD THOMPSON

I BELIEVE this is the first time that the executors of an estate in Europe have consigned an important and valuable collection of works of art to be sold by auction in America. This is the reason for the unparalleled publicity given in the press all over the world to this sale.

My thanks are due to Messrs. Knight, Frank & Rutley, as represented by Sir Howard Frank, without whose coöperation this arrangement could not have been made.

It was obvious to all visitors to "The Hill" that every object in the late Viscount Leverhulme's magnificent Collection was in as perfect condition as expert knowledge and care could keep it. We are fortunate that owing to the zeal and experience of Messrs. Cameron Smith & Marriott, the packers and shippers, and the watchfulness of our representative, Mr. E. Harold Thompson, who remained at The Hill until the last case had been packed, the Collection has arrived without injury.

I am especially fortunate to have been able to persuade Mr. Herbert Cescinsky, the well-known authority on English furniture, and the author of "English Furniture of the Eighteenth Century" and other standard works, to catalogue the furniture in the Collection. Mr. Cescinsky is now lecturing on his favorite subject at the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and other museums in America.

The important tapestries and needlework pictures were catalogued by Mr. W. G. Thomson, author of "A History of Tapestry from the Earliest Times until the Present Day", whose name is as well known to connoisseurs in America as it is in Europe. The remaining numbers in the catalogue have been described by Mrs. Celia Woodward and Mr. Charles Packer, experts of our own staff.

The description of every object has been made as accurate as expert knowledge and complete good faith could ensure, but for obvious reasons it is an essential part of the agreement between the executors of the estate of the late Viscount Leverhulme and The Anderson Galleries, Incorporated, that no warranty shall be given on their behalf in respect of any object in the Collection.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY

THE LEVERHULME COLLECTION

MY friend, Mitchell Kennerley, has paid me the compliment of asking me to prepare the Catalogue of the Furniture Section of the Leverhulme Collection, not so much on account of any skill I may possess in the way of cataloguing works of art (as he has already a staff quite competent in this field), but because I knew the late Viscount Leverhulme and his Collection, and also many of his possessions before he acquired them, in other famous collections and historical houses.

Perhaps a few words about the man himself may not be out of place; may even be of interest to those in America who are fortunate enough to acquire some of his pieces at the sale. Lord Leverhulme climbed the ladder of life from the bottom rung, and was not unnaturally proud of the fact, but in no sense with the vanity of the self-made man. He admired energy; to the day of his death, almost, he was one of the most energetic men in the world, rising with the sun in the morning, and often before. In a somewhat lesser degree, he admired ability; but for riches he had no regard whatsoever. I have never known a man in whose mental make-up there was less snobbery. He had a passion for acquiring fine things, and he bought with a royal purse, but he had the true spirit of the collector; he valued his possessions—until a finer example came along, when he sacrificed the one for the other, ruthlessly. He collected sometimes—too often, perhaps—on his own unaided judgment, without expert advice, and of course he made mistakes. That the Collection is as fine as it is—and in many respects, it is superb—is due largely to the fact that Lord Leverhulme never bought a thing simply because it was cheap. I remember him telling me once, with that pawky Cheshire humor which always distinguished his anecdotes, about an old lady in Blackburn market place, who made and sold pies. She allowed a young man to run a credit with her, and like many young men, he left the town in her debt. The old lady always said afterwards, that had she known the young man was not going to pay her for the pies he had, she would have charged him double. Lord Leverhulme would have paid double—for good pies; at all times.

The finest part of the Leverhulme Collection was housed in his favorite home, The Hill, Hampstead, the prettiest and most old-world suburb of London. Here he indulged in a veritable orgy of building. He bought up the adjoining estates on either side, pulled down the old houses, and extended his own. He never completed his work—in fact, I think if he had lived for another fifty years he would still have been building, like Bess of Hardwick. His house grew with his Collection, and how extensive this was, the sales here will show.

Now a word as to the Collection and its quality. It was characteristic of Lord Leverhulme that he should make a path for himself in collecting, when he entered that field, as in business. He knew a fine thing, and was prepared to pay the price for it; and he sought out the things that were fine, but not yet fully appreciated. For years he was almost the only collector of work in the Adam, Hepplewhite and Sheraton styles, and he had the field practically to himself. True, other people of discernment bought as well, but on nothing like the scale on which he did. He made some mistakes, as I have already said, but these are surprisingly few (and they have been eliminated from this part of the sale). But one has only to examine the commodes and side tables, for instance, in the Collection, to appreciate how discerning he was. Here, in these pieces alone, we may pass a quarter of a century of the finest cabinet-work—the Golden Age of English Furniture—in full review. The marqueterie of these last years of the eighteenth century, and above all, the beautiful decorative painting of Pergolesi, Cipriani, Zucchi, and last, but not least, Angelica Kauffmann herself, were more appreciated in the dark years of the “seventies” than in the more recent decades when collecting became a vogue. Fashions create values, not always wisely. But we know—and Lord Leverhulme was keenly alive to the fact—that the fine thing will endure, and be recognized at last.

He was catholic in his collecting, although the Adam, Hepplewhite and Sheraton styles were his first love, and one to which he remained faithful until his death. He ventured into other fields, and his success was remarkable. He appeared to have a positive genius for the fashion of the next decade—not that he cared for fashions, but his prophetic instinct enabled him to buy when fine pieces could be obtained, and at reasonable prices. He was the first collector of the Lion Mahogany of the years between 1725-35, and he bought when this furniture was not understood, and in consequence, not appreciated. To-day it commands the highest price of all eighteenth century furniture, in the London auction rooms. Oak did not appeal to him—though in this sale is the finest example of an inlaid Tudor Marriage Chest that I have ever seen. For his Chippendale furniture he paid high prices, but he bought on the crest of a fashion; and the same may be said of his needlework and stumpwork, his tapestries and his carpets. Here he was able to remedy his lack of foresight by the weight of his millions, and he secured the finest specimens because he could outbid the generality of English collectors. He was, above all things, a fearless buyer.

The size of the whole Collection is enormous, and its quality extraordinary. To say that everything is of absolutely the finest quality would be an exaggeration; but to say that every article offered in this sale has either a collecting or an historical value, is literally true. The history of English Furniture is not concerned merely with examples of the most elaborate order: there are many simple pieces which serve to show the fine traditions of the eighteenth century, in a way which the more ornate ones cannot do. As a rule, however, Lord Leverhulme specialized in fine pieces from historical collections or houses, and among the numerous commodes in the sale are examples of the exquisite cabinet-work of the late eighteenth century, of a quality that no other collection can show.

Mitchell Kennerley has asked me to describe everything as accurately as I am able to do, concealing no point whatever, whether in favor of, or to the demerit of each piece. We have both felt that in a Collection so superb as this—and on this point there can be no two unprejudiced opinions—any mistakes would be decidedly out of place. So far as I can rely on my judgment, there are none in this catalogue. Everything that I considered a mistake, has been removed.

A few words in conclusion as to the cataloguing itself. In every instance I have stated the dimensions of a piece, with the exception, in some cases of chairs, and have given the country of origin and the date or approximate date, as accurately as my knowledge will enable me to do. Where I have had any doubt in the matter, I have preferred to say "in the style of" rather than include an actual date or maker. I do not necessarily imply by this wording that the piece is not historically authentic, but simply that I am unable to make a definite statement about it.

FINE SIXTEENTH CENTURY TAPESTRY

[NUMBER 67]

67 PANEL OF SIXTEENTH CENTURY TAPESTRY

Representing scenes from a romance, woven in wool, silk and gold thread.

In the right of the hanging a Queen repels the advances of a courtier, the false Marschalck, who is pictured in the next incident on the left placing a drugged dwarf in the Queen's bed, and the King on being informed kills the dwarf, as shown at an upper window. The Queen is banished from the court and flees to the forest, where she is protected by a woodman, depicted in the distance to the left. The Archduke Leopold of Austria takes up her cause, but suffers death at the hands of her accuser. The dog of the latter, however, attacks him, as is shown towards the middle of the tapestry in a beautiful scene with lilies in the foreground, a tower and water, and distant view of a palace. The dog being brought before the King, a combat takes place between Marschalck and the dog, ending in the death of the former. The King repents and searches for the wronged Queen, and in the left of the tapestry meets the woodman who had befriended her, through whom they are reunited. Along the top and bottom are explanatory inscriptions and the date 1554, with a coat-of-arms above.

Height, 35 inches; width, 17 feet 6 inches

119 IMPORTANT MORTLAKE TAPESTRY

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1630

Representing a temple in a garden; the lower part consisting of mouldings with panels of lozenge shape decorated with a river god, Mars, and Diana, while the frieze is panelled with bas-reliefs of amorini supporting cartouches framing masks. Upon this stand columns with capitals and fluted shafts decorated towards the base with bas-reliefs representing terminal figures and ornament. The entablature is carved with wave scrolls, egg-and-dart and other patterns; from the lowest member hang festoons of fruit and flowers. Inside the temple are two blue vases, with gold mounts, containing large bouquets of crown-imperial, campanula, peony and other flowers. In the background to right and left are large trees, and in the distance a woody park and buildings.

The border on the sides represents twisted and fluted columns of pseudo-classical order, with a middle section carved with acanthus leaves and bas-reliefs of boys climbing a vine; the bases are enriched with leaves and ropes carved in low relief. From the capitals hang festoons of fruit, vegetables and flowers, flanking a central cartouche framing a central medallion decorated with a landscape of trees, mountains and buildings—forming the upper horizontal border, the lower being of the same character.

From the Collection of the Right Hon. Lord Lytton.

Height, 11 feet 3 inches; width, 13 feet

STUART NEEDLEWORK PANEL—SUSANNA AND THE ELDERS
[NUMBER 157]

157 STUART NEEDLEWORK PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1640

In fine canvas stitches, laid-work, looped purl, long and short knots, couching stitches and painting, representing Susanna and the Elders, within an oval medallion with frame of flowers and leaves. Susanna, in white robe, in her bath, is seized by the Elders. At their backs are the mulberry and other trees round which the story centres. To the left is a curious fountain with upper basin supporting a grotesque fish ridden by an infant holding a water jug aloft. In the background a balustrade, undulating ground set with various flowers, a mansion to right and left, birds and clouds in the sky. The corners of the panel are filled with large conventional flowers; above are two birds, on sprays, in high relief; at the foot, a lion on a mound to the left in knotwork, and on the right, a leopard resting on a basketwork ground. The ground between is filled by a bird, a fly, caterpillars, beetles, a rose and other flowers in flat work.

Height, 16 inches; width, 21 inches

165 SET OF FOUR CANDELABRA

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1780

Formed of oviform vases of Derbyshire spar, mounted with ormolu covers, the borders and stems chased with foliage and honeysuckle ornament. With scroll branches at the sides for two lights each. On spiral fluted stems, sloping outwards to form circular feet edged with guilloche ornament. (4)

From the Collection of the Right Hon. the Earl of Home, of Bothwell Castle, Douglas Castle, and The Hirsell, Berwickshire.

A pair of exactly similar candelabra to these were exhibited at the Burlington Fine Arts Club by Colonel H. H. Mulliner in 1920-21; they are illustrated in his book "The Decorative Arts in England", Fig. 164, and in the text he states, "Robert Adam regarded candelabra of Blue John (or Derbyshire Spar) mounted with ormolu as suitable to stand on pedestals which were such a favourite feature of his interior schemes." As the Earl of Home was a patron of Robert Adam, it is reasonable to conclude that these candelabra and that in the following lot were made to the order of Robert Adam.

"The manufacturing of vessels and ornaments from solid fluor spar (called 'Blue John') was begun in Derbyshire in 1765" (Watson's Chemical Essays, Vol. II, page 227). The supply of this spar was quickly exhausted and there is no trace of its having been used after 1790. In June, 1773, a notice was issued as follows:—"Duesbury and Co., Manufacturers of Derby and Chelsea Porcelain, most respectfully beg leave to inform the Nobility, Gentry and the Public in General, that they have fitted up the large and elegant suit of Rooms at No. 1, Bedford Street, Covent Garden; which are now opened with a great variety of capital as well as useful and Ornamental Articles. A Fine Assortment of Biscuit Groups and single figures; also a curious Collection of Derbyshire Fluors, Mabasters, Marbles, etc. N.B. The Rooms are well air'd."

[SEE ILLUSTRATION]

166 SUPERB CANDELABRUM

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1780

The body in finely marked Derbyshire spar, with exceptionally fine ormolu mounts. A female term figure at each side supports two candle branches with flowerlike nozzles, springing from a single twisted stem, the body and base being decorated with swags of fruit and boldly carved acanthus. The square base of slate and ormolu mounted on four ball feet.

From the Collection of the Right Hon. the Earl of Home.

QUEEN ANNE PANEL IN PETIT-POINT NEEDLEWORK

[NUMBER 197]

- 197 PETIT-POINT PANEL      ENGLISH, FIRST HALF OF 18TH CENTURY
 Illustrating farm life. Towards the left is the farmhouse, with yard containing a horse and haystack, with pigsty by the door, from which a path leads to the field, where the farmer and his family are grouped by a chicken coop. A nearer field is occupied by a dairymaid with cows, a haymaker, a well and a duck pond. On the left is a road with a mare and foal; on the right are a shepherd and shepherdess with sheep. A windmill and a miller bearing a sack are on a distant hill.

Height, 21 inches; width, 26½ inches

[SEE ILLUSTRATION]

198 FINE BRUSSELS TAPESTRY BY JAN VAN BRUGGHEN

FLEMISH, CIRCA 1670

With the Brussels mark and initials of weaver. The upper part consists of an elaborate cartouche of scrolls and a shell, framing a landscape and having a swag of fruit and leaves with drapery pendent from it. It is supported by two winged and partly draped amorini. The lower decoration is composed of a blue vase with mounts in gold color shaded with crimson, containing tulips, periwinkles, anemones, roses, carnations, campanulas and other flowers in natural colors, on a panelled background decorated with crimson scrolls, grapes, peaches, pomegranates and other fruits; the whole framed within narrow bands decorated with a pattern of laurel leaves tied with ribbons at intervals. The panel represents a shepherdess dressed in gold, red and blue, walking on the bank of a stream followed by her flock. On the opposite bank is a row of large trees, and in the distance a woody park with water-courses and view of sky. Marks "B. U. B." and "I. V. B."

Height, 10 feet 10 inches; width, 3 feet 4 inches

Companion to the following tapestry.

[SEE ILLUSTRATION]

199 FINE BRUSSELS TAPESTRY

FLEMISH, CIRCA 1670

Companion tapestry to the preceding. A sportsman in blue coat, red waistcoat and golden-brown breeches, carrying a gun and walking stick, followed by a servant carrying rabbits slung on a stick over his shoulder, and preceded by a dog, is returning from hunting along the bank of a stream. On the left are trees, one of them having a vine growing up its trunk. On the opposite bank are bulrushes, shrubs, a grassy slope, with a wooded park surrounding a château in the distance. Border as in the preceding tapestry with some differences in detail.

Height, 10 feet 10 inches; width, 3 feet 4 inches

TWO IMPORTANT BRUSSELS TAPESTRY PANELS
[NUMBERS 198 AND 199]

200 CHARLES II STUMPWORK AND NEEDLEWORK PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1670

A turreted manor house and small figure under tent at top; Charles I and Henrietta Maria seated in centre, with pageboy holding horse to the left and a lady holding flowers to the right, a fountain with lion, lioness, floral emblems, etc.

Size, 17 x 22 inches

201 WILLIAM AND MARY PETIT-POINT PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1689

Representing William and Mary standing beneath a tree, with lion, leopard and large flowers in corners.

Size, 17 x 21 inches

A needlework panel depicting William and Mary is of great rarity. The large number of Stuart panels worked in the latter half of the seventeenth century have a definite significance. They were essentially cavalier in origin, and a household in which they were seen would declare itself loyal to the Stuarts.

202 STUART NEEDLEWORK PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1680

The King and Queen in the centre, with a tree between, amidst sprays of floral emblems, the corners with a dragon, unicorn and other animals, in varied colored silks on cream ground. As the tree in the centre is an oak, this probably represents Charles II and Queen Catherine.

Size, 10 x 11½ inches

203 STUART NEEDLEWORK PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1640

The centre with a bust portrait of Queen Henrietta Maria, within a border of flower sprays, butterflies and thistles.

Size, 9 x 9¾ inches

204 NEEDLEWORK PANEL

ENGLISH, EARLY 18TH CENTURY

A group of four sprays of flowers in varied colored silks, bordering an eight-pointed star medallion in gold thread.

From the Collection of the late Sir E. H. Holden, Bart.

Size, 11 x 10¼ inches

IN PETIT-POINT NEEDLEWORK

[NUMBER 231]

231 EARLY EIGHTEENTH CENTURY OVAL PETIT-POINT PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1715

Representing Diana at the bath. Under a red and gold canopy with scalloped fringe and tasselled valance, lined with blue, and from which curtains are festooned to trees and fall in graceful folds, Diana, seated and partly draped in red, receives the ministrations of her nymphs. One dries her foot, wet from the golden bath; others are ready with perfumed waters, or tend her hair. All are gracefully attired in blue, brown and yellow robes. On either side are trees whose foliage frames the upper part of the panel. In the foreground the framing is continued by masses of flowers, rocks and grass.

308 FINE AUBUSSON TABLE COVER

LATE 17TH CENTURY

On a cream ground. A formal rosette of acanthus leaves woven in crimson, brown and yellow occupies the centre and is surrounded by festoons of green oak leaves looped at the corners and turned over. The intervening ground is enriched with semi-natural flowers, including carnations of various kinds, tulips and roses. Around this is a series of joined foliated scrolls and spirals in brilliant red, blue, yellow and grey, tied with red ribbons and giving issue to more natural plants, notably roses, daffodils, carnations and campanulas.

Two large garlands of flowers, intertwining and mixing branches and sprays, fill the field outside and constitute a veritable though informal border of blossoms. The hyacinth, hydrangea, arum, white and red lilies, rose, iris and nearly every common flower of the seventeenth century garden are represented here.

A narrow band of green laurel leaves bound at intervals with red ribbon frames the panel.

378 BRUSSELS TAPESTRY BY JAN RAES

FLEMISH, FIRST HALF OF 17TH CENTURY

Meleager presenting the head of the Kalydonian Boar to Atalanta. Slightly to the left stands Meleager, his left hand grasping the upright boar-spear with its strong crossbar, his right hand touching the boar's head. From his shoulders falls a red robe almost covering a blue cuirass. His head is bent downwards regarding Atalanta, who, wearing a gold chaplet and necklace and swathed in blue drapery with an undergarment of gold shaded with green, is seated on a rock. Her sandal is cast off, her left hand grasps an unstrung bow, while her right rests on the boar's head, at which two hounds are sniffing. In the foreground are a shattered tree-trunk, grass and flowering plants; in the background an ivied tree breaking into autumnal foliage against a blue sky with white clouds.

The border has for a foundation a frame simulating carving of acanthus foliage, with an inner band of discs and outer mouldings of egg-and-dart pattern. Towards the middle of the vertical borders are "S"-shaped scrolls united by a loop and passing over a spiral above, to support a radiating shell. The ornament rests on a shell of different character. In the corners are cartouches showing blue and gold-edged discs containing stars of eight points, like a mariner's compass, behind which issue flames and cornucopiæ, with rich bunches of grapes and other fruits.

Height, 10 feet 4 inches; width, 7 feet

Jan Raes, mentioned as doyen of the tapissiers' corporation in Brussels, 1618-1658, was one of the most prominent tapestry weavers of his time. Specimens of his work are to be found in the Royal Collections of Great Britain and Spain and in the Austrian State Collection, Vienna.

397 TUDOR CYPRESS AND HICKORY MARRIAGE CHEST

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1540

Top with eight semi-flush panels with a chopped-in inlay of hunting and fowling scenes. The front has a running guilloche frieze and pilasters with inlaid and arcaded panels in between. Two drawers in base.

A magnificent example of Tudor work, fully equal to the chest in St. Saviour's Collegiate Church, Southwark, London. See Macquoid, "History of English Furniture", Vol. I, Fig. 57.

The extreme rarity of this piece lies in the fact that wandering artisans, principally of French extraction, often made fine chest fronts in England during the sixteenth century, which were made up into rude chests by the English arkwrights. The difference in quality between the fronts and the chests themselves in these examples is very noticeable. Complete chests of this period, of quality equal to the present one, are excessively rare. Not more than three or four are known to exist.

Width, 4 feet 6 inches

FINE CHARLES I NEEDLEWORK PANEL

[NUMBER 480]

480 STUART STUMPWORK AND EMBROIDERY PANEL

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1630

In openwork, chain-stitch, petit-point, long and short stitch and knots, on cream satin ground. In the middle appear two figures—Time, with hour-glass and scythe, and Justice—a lady holding scales and a sword. Above each is a castle in relief, with lawns of knotted silks, and a rayed sun: an apple tree with fruit in very high relief, the leaves being worked separately and slightly attached, is placed between. In the lower part is a fish pond with fish and rocky background, flanked by a lion on the left and a stag on the right. Sprays of conventional flowers occupy the corners. Birds on stumps of apple and oak trees, a flowering plant, butterflies, snails, caterpillars, beetles, roses, carnations and other flowers are worked over the ground.

Height, 16½ inches; width, 21½ inches

AN EXTREMELY FINE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY AUBUSSON TAPESTRY PANEL
[NUMBER 493]

493 PANEL OF FINE AUBUSSON TAPESTRY

CIRCA 1770

Pale yellow damassé ground, on which are two upright oval medallions, the one on the left woven with a maiden spinning, who wears a white coiffure, golden-colored apron, and crimson and buff gown, and is conversing with a bagpiper dressed in purple coat, crimson and white sash and buff hat, in a background of landscape and sky. The medallion to the right shows the game of Blindman's Buff played by a beau and belle clad in a bluish-white dress over a pink petticoat—in a background of landscape. The medallions are framed in laurel and acanthus leaves, simulating carved and gilded wood. Over the top is a lover's knot from which come wreaths of red and white roses, blue campanulas and other flowers. From the sides of the medallions baskets of flowers are hung.

In the centre of the composition, hanging by a blue ribbon tied in a lover's knot, a trophy composed of birds billing, scythes, a reaping hook, rake, hoe, spade, basket, watering pot, bunches of grapes, red and blue and other flowers, is woven. These are enclosed by eight festoons of various flowers in the upper part of the panel, in the lower by sprays of chrysanthemums, roses, honeysuckle and other flowers. A narrow band of floral decorations intertwining with undulating blue ribbon frames the panel.

From the Collection of Sir Anthony Rothschild, Aston Clinton, Buckinghamshire, England, 1922.

Height, 8 feet; width, 12 feet 3 inches

CIRCA 1770

Yellow damassé ground with upright oval medallions framed in mouldings of leaf, balls and ovals, in simulated carving and gilding, that on the left representing a lady in brown hat with crimson feather, crimson and yellow bodice, yellow girdle, white apron and blue petticoat with hanging waterbottle, holding a flageolet in one hand and carrying a violin (?) in the other, followed by a child in crimson and buff dress, white stockings and blue shoes with crimson bows, carrying a violin and accompanied by a dog. The medallion on the right shows a sportsman carrying a gun and a hare on his right shoulder, followed by a dog and preceded by an attendant, in crimson and blue breeches, carrying waterfowl on the left, in a landscape.

In the centre is a trophy of a hunting horn, javelin, quiver, sporting gun, net, battle axe and branches of oak.

The panel is framed in a shaped border of slightly darker tint, marked by stems, leaves, foliated scrolls, shells and cartouches, from which, at the top, three rich festoons and pendants of flowers, and ribbons, are hung, while the sides and base are wreathed with garlands. Blue ribbons with white transverse bands, central and outlining bands of crimson and decorated with lace-like blue spots beyond the outline, are tied in true lovers' knots in the lower part of the medallion frames and serve for the suspension of wreaths.

From the Collection of Sir Anthony Rothschild, Aston Clinton, Buckinghamshire, England, 1922.

Height, 8 feet; width, 11 feet 4 inches

547 EARLY SEVENTEENTH CENTURY SPANISH NEEDLEWORK PANEL CIRCA 1610

In silk and gold thread, in long and short, purl, plate and crinkled plate, couching and basket stitches, arranged in an arcade of three arches. Under the central arch are a grandee and lady hand-in-hand, in the rich costumes of the period, in a landscape showing soldiers, a castle on the right, and tents on the left, the foreground being in gold with powdering of small plants: the whole executed with miniature-like fineness. The smaller arches enclose a dolphin fountain in gold work, and a closed pavilion in blue and gold. Above the central arch is a baldequin ornament, with festooned curtains in gold. The smaller arches are gadrooned, and above them are military and fruit and flower trophies on a spangled ground. Under the arcade is a series of conventional flowers in gold divided by columns. The whole is framed in a border of foliated scrolls and conventional ornament in gold.

579 THREE ELIZABETHAN NEEDLEWORK PANELS CIRCA 1580

Three panels of Elizabethan needlework in petit-point and various stitches, of the Creation of Eve, the Temptation, Fall and expulsion of man from the Garden of Eden, in borders composed of fruit, flowers and grain, with figures of boys hanging grapes at the angles or riding on beasts, with cornucopiæ and figures in fancy dress blowing horns; angels, pelican, eagles and other symbolic birds and animals, on a dark ground, worked in colored silks and with gold and silver thread.

In the first panel, the Creator, wearing crown, red robe and drapery, is drawing Eve from Adam's side. The second scene shows the temptation; the serpent, with winged human head, is in the Tree of Knowledge, while Eve is giving an apple to Adam. In the panel are a swine, a man-headed animal, rabbits, and a unicorn. The sun appears in the left upper corner, the moon on the right.

In the second panel Eve and Adam are plucking fig leaves from the tree. Near them are a cow, a stag, and birds. The second incident shows the Creator, in crown, halo and rich dress, walking in the garden, whom Adam supplicates. In the background are an evil spirit, a bird and the serpent. In the distance are trees, mountains and sky.

The third panel shows the expulsion from Paradise, the angel appearing in flame-colored clouds in a blue cloak, while the serpent makes off in the distance. Death, a skeleton, accompanies Adam and Eve. The last episode shows Adam sitting by a tree trunk, wiping the sweat from his brow, spade in hand, a dog lying in front, while Eve, to the left, is spinning. In the foreground is a garden with flowers, enclosed in a paling, upon which cocks are crowing, with a fruit tree behind. (3)

SET OF SIX PANELS OF FINE AUBUSSON TAPESTRY

NUMBERS 611-616

Illustrating Rural Scenes, on a cream ground framed in a setting of festoons and pendants of crimson drapery lined with pale purplish-grey, with golden fringes, ropes and tassels, hung from a foliated horizontal rod wreathed with roses and other flowers. The sides consist of hanging drapery and blue vases with gold mounts, containing rich bouquets of various flowers and supported in a calyx of an acanthus stem, which, curving inwards, throws out leaves and a volute. The lower decoration springs from an inverted acanthus plant of crimson and yellow foliage, from which grow lateral stems and leaves ending in volutes. The top of the crimson drapery, the vertical and the lower horizontal borders are entwined and festooned by an almost continuous garland of flowers. The background is yellow-brown.

These tapestries were bought by the first Earl Cowley, when British Ambassador to the French Court.

Henry Richard Charles Wellesley, 1804-1884, 1st Earl Cowley, was a most accomplished diplomat, serving at Vienna, The Hague, Constantinople and Frankfort before being appointed to the Embassy at Paris in 1852. He retired in 1867 and in the following year inherited Draycott House, near Chippenham, Wiltshire, where he died in 1884. The tapestries remained at Draycott until 1915.

611 FINE AUBUSSON TAPESTRY PANEL

CIRCA 1780

617 SUPERB SATINWOOD LIBRARY BOOKCASE

ENGLISH, CIRCA 1790

Veneered with satinwood and inlaid with marqueterie of various woods. Each of the three wings has a separate pediment, in the centre scrolled, carved and dentilled, with a turned, carved and inlaid vase; on the wings the pediments are concave-sided, moulded to match the one in the centre, and with smaller finials. The four doors in the upper carcasses have a flat lattice, in the manner of Sheraton, with carved honeysuckle finials; behind are eleven moulded shelves of Cuban mahogany. The lower carcass has a bowed centre and hollow wings, with a small frieze with three pull-out slides, inlaid on the fronts with flutes of boxwood, and with ivory knobs; below are four doors inlaid with central ovals radiated fan-wise and surrounded with mitred figured satinwood. The top of the lower part is inlaid with musical trophies in various woods; behind the central doors are four drawers, veneered on the fronts with satinwood and with edge-beads of ebony, and with finely chased brass handles plated with silver. The top drawer of the four has a writing slide, in grooves, edged with boxwood and lined with green cloth; the whole rests on a solid moulded plinth, cross-banded on the face with satinwood.

Symons, Inc. won a spirited battle with Mrs. Victor Weil for a seventeenth century Italian tapestry panel, which was knocked down for $2,800. The tapestry, about 8 by 11 feet, was woven in the factory established in Rome by Cardinal Barberini, nephew of Pope Urban VIII. It has the same peculiar sun—the Barberini crest—as the famous Barberini tapestries in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The scene is one of allegorical figures representing Justice, Charity, Hercules and Prudence, grouped around the sun and stars.

The highest price for an individual object was $4,250, paid by W. F. Cooper of New York for a large George I English walnut armchair, about 1720. It is 41 inches high and 29 inches wide across the seat. The central splat in the back is carved vase-like, and the arms end in eagle heads, while the cabriole legs have ball-and-claw feet. There was spirited bidding for this chair.

An agent for the Boston Museum of Fine Arts paid $3,500 for a famous old Tudor marriage chest, which caused the greatest excitement of any article offered yesterday.

Partridge and Symons, the dealers, and an agent supposed to be representing the Metropolitan Museum of Art, all bid heavily against the Boston Museum. As a result the price was bid up from $100, the opening offer, to more than five times what the appraisers had estimated as its highest English selling price—$225.

The chest, which dates back to 1540 and is made of English cypress and hickory, is regarded by experts as a magnificent example of Tudor workmanship, besides being very rare. Not more than three or four are known to exist.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts made a purchase by long-distance telephone. He authorized an agent to bid a substantial sum for a pair of late seventeenth century William and Mary chairs and got them for $1,100. The chairs have high backs, elaborately carved, and scroll legs in the Flemish style. Governor Fuller announced he would attend today's sale.

A lot of six panels of eighteenth century tapestries, which were purchased in France by the artist Earl Cowley when British Ambassador to the French Court in the middle of the nineteenth century and taken by him to Draycott House, Wiltshire, England, were sold for $34,000 to Miss H. Counihan, agent, who did not disclose her client's name. The client was a woman who had the tapestries wrapped up immediately, so that she could take them home in her Rolls-Royce and have them hung in her home last night.

She had to fight two dealers—Symons, Inc., and P. W. French & Co., Inc.—to get the tapestries. The dealers stuck closely to her while the bidding jumped from $10,000 to $34,000 in bids of at least $1,000 each, but finally gave up the struggle in the face of her persistence to have the tapestries.

The tapestries illustrate rural scenes in France and are brightly colored, are about eight feet square each, and the other two are about eight by each.

$8,000 for a Commode

Mrs. Henry Walters, wife of the banker and railroad financier, paid $8,000 for an eighteenth century English satinwood inlaid and ormolu-mounted commode, for which several dealers bid against her with great spirit. This is believed to have come from Thomas Chippendale's workshops and was formerly in the collection of Colonel H. H. Mulliner, the English authority on decorative arts.

A six-octave grand pianoforte by John Broadwood & Sons, England, made in 1796 from a design by Sheraton, and presented by Don Manuel de Godoy, "Prince of the Peace" to the Queen of Spain, was sold to Ginsberg & Levy, dealers, for $6,100 after it had been bid up from $1,000 by William Skinner, the silk manufacturer. The piano has a satinwood case banded with mahogany, which is inset with Wedgwood medallions, an ormolu panel and the royal arms of Spain.

Others who made purchases were Governor Allan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, Clarence Dillon the banker, Mrs. Victor Well, Mrs. John Sloane and S. H. Ordway Jr. The auction room was crowded with about 700 persons who displayed great interest in bidding. As on the previous days of the sale, the prices were much higher than the estimates made by the English appraisers of what the articles would have brought had they been sold at auction in England.

Panel Brings High Price.

A seventeenth century petit-point panel, 19 by 22 inches, for example, was sold for $2,900, which was just about eight times the English estimate of its selling price.

"I was a fool for paying that much," said the man who bought it, "but I just felt like it."

The best laugh of the sale came when a man became so excited while bidding on a pair of Georgian silver saucer tureens and covers that he kept bidding against himself after everybody else had stopped bidding. He "raised" himself from $410 to $430 and then again to $430 before the auctioneers realized what was going on. Then they called out, "You're bidding against yourself," and everybody in the room laughed except one man who turned red. He paid $430 for what he could have got for $410.
